STABBED WHILE IN HIS CARRIAGE.

His Slayer an Italian Named Cesare Giovanni Santo, a Beardless Youth of Twenty-Two.

HIS MOTIVE IS NOT KNOWN.

He Was Arrested and After a Narrow Escape From Being Lynched Finally Land ed in Jail—President Carnot Lingers in Great Agony For Several Hours and Dies Shortly After Midnight—He Remained Conscious to the Last and Nearly His Last Words Were "I Am Going Away." All France in Mourning Over the Sad Affair—The Assassin Visited in Jail, but Has but Little to Say—The French Senate and Chamber of Deputies Called to As semble on Wednesday to Elect a New President.

LYONS, June 25.—M. Carnot, the president of the French Republic was assassinated last night here on the public street. The president was visiting Lyons in connection with the international exhibition. Upon his arrival here, he was tendered a reception at the prefecture, after which he visited the exhibition. After spending some time at the exhibition he proceeded to the palace of commerce where a banquet was given in his honor.

PRESIDENT CARNOT.

At 9:25 o'clock last night President Carnot started for the theater, where a gala performance was to be given because of his presence in the city. Several carriages were in the procession, the first one being occupied by the president. M. Carnot's carriage was driven slowly along in front of the palace of commerce and then turned into Rue de la République, still following the facade of the palace, when half way down the street, which was lined with enthusiastic crowds of people who were cheering, a man rushed out of the crowd and sprang upon the steps of the president's landau.

Just at this moment M. Carnot was waving his right hand and saluting with his hat in his left hand in response to the ovation that was being given to him by the crowd. The people close to the carriage saw that the man standing on the step had a knife in his hand. By the glare of the electric lights they saw the bright blade gleam in the air as the assassin's arm descended, and then President Carnot was seen to fall back in his seat, his face deathly pale. One of his hands was pressed over his heart, where the steel had entered the body.

M. Rivaud, prefect of Lyons, who was seated beside M. Carnot, immediately struck the assassin a blow full in the face and knocked him from the step, thus preventing the man from again stabbing the president, which it was his evident intention to do.

Instantly cries of "Le president est assassiné," "Mort à la assassine," was heard on every side and the crowd in the vicinity of the carriage swelled to enormous proportions, every member of it seemingly intent on killing the assassin. He was grasped by a dozen hands and his life would have then and there paid the forfeit of his crime had it not been for several sergeants de ville, who seized him and attempted to draw him away from his captors.

This was found to be impossible, as the infuriated populace were determined to lynch the man, and the efforts of the sergeants availed nothing beyond saving the man from instant death. Blows were aimed at his face and head over the shoulders of the police, who had by this time received reinforcements, and many of the blows landed fairly. At last the police succeed in driving the howling mob back a foot or so from their prisoner, but to get the captive through the crowd was a physical impossibility.

In the meantime, the news of the attempted murder had spread with lightning-like rapidity, and mounted guards were sent to the aid of the police, who were still struggling to preserve the life of the assassin. With drawn sabres in their hands the guards rode down into the swirling crowd, heedless of whom their horses tramped upon. The crowd gave way before the horses, and at last the center of the mob was reached. Then a cordon was formed around the 10 almost exhausted policemen and their captive, and the march to the police station began.

Even thus surrounded, the prisoner was not safe, for men in the crowd made frantic endeavors to reach him. The guards repelled these attacks with the flat sides of their swords. At the same time they kept watchful eyes upon the crowd to prevent the prisoner from being shot. Maledictions were hurled upon the captive and never before has such a wild indignation against a human being been seen in this city.

In the meantime physicians were hastily summoned to attend the president, who had almost immediately been conveyed to the prefecture. A careful examination was made of the wound, and the doctors declared that the condition of M. Carnot was hopeless.

The report of the news of the assassination caused a great sensation at the Grand theater, which was filled to the walls with the elite of Lyons. The theater presented a brilliant scene, the handsome toilets of the ladies being offset by the gay uniforms of the many military officers present.

All were awaiting with impatience the arrival of the president, and all were unable to understand the delay. Suddenly a man entered the theater, crying at the top of his voice: "The president has been assassinated."

The most intense excitement followed this abrupt announcement. Women screamed and several fainted. Many men, without waiting to secure their hats, ran out of the building in order to confirm the news. They found all the streets leading to the palace filled with excited throngs, and in a few minutes they were convinced that the report of the cowardly attempt upon the life of the president was true.

Suddenly through the throng sped a landau conveying Adriah Dupuy, a brother of the prime minister, Deputy Chaudey and Prefect Rivaud, the crowd falling away before it as it dashed into the Rue de la République, preceded by four mounted gendarmes. The crowd thinking now that the report of the assassination was untrue and that the president was in the carriage, shouted, "Vive Carnot," "Vive la République."

The carriage was stopped and M. Chaudey and Rivaud in tremulous voices: "Don't shout; the president has been the victim of an outrage." The cheers were instantly turned to curses and many and loud were the cries for vengeance.

The landau proceeded to the theater where M. Rivaud and Chaudey went to the president's box. As soon as they were seen the whole audience arose, and amid profound silence M. Rivaud said in a voice broken with sobs: "The president has just been assassinated."

This announcement was received with a terrible explosion of fury, as the audience, when the first report of the assassination was received, had, though greatly excited, generally discredited it. The theater resounded with shouts of "A mort à la assassin" and cries for vengeance upon him.

When silence was in a measure restored, M. Rivaud continued: "In the Rue de la République, a miscreant under the pretext of presenting a petition, stabbed M. Carnot with a dagger."

M. Rivaud was again interrupted with shouts of "death to the murderer; revenge."

Waving his hand for silence M. Rivaud again spoke, saying: "Do not make my mission more painful. We left M. Carnot in the hands of doctors. You understand that under these conditions our hearts are filled with sorrow, and that the proposed performance in the president's honor can not take place."

The audience then left the building, many of them proceeding at once to the prefecture, where they stood in the streets waiting for any report that might be vouchsafed them from the building, discussing among themselves the horrible crime that they considered had cast disgrace upon the fair fame of their city.

After examining the president's wound all the physicians in attendance upon him agreed that an operation was necessary, whereupon Dr. Ollier immediately probed the wound. While this was being done M. Carnot came to his senses, and said feebly but distinctly: "How you are hurting me."

The doctors, however, continued to attend the wound, the outward bleeding of which had stopped. They knew, though, that the president's condition was extremely grave, as they more than suspected internal hemorrhage had commenced.

After M. Carnot had been taken from his carriage and placed upon a bed in the prefecture, nobody but the doctors and the officers of his military household who had accompanied him to Lyons, were allowed to enter the room to which he had been carried.

Shortly after midnight the archbishop of Lyons was summoned to the bedside of the dying president to administer to him the last rites of the church. He was in the room but a short time, when he emerged and retired to an adjoining room. Here he remained until half past 11 o'clock, when he was again summoned to the president's room, where he administered to him the sacrament.

M. Carnot remained conscious to the last. He realized that his life was rapidly ebbing, and twice he said "Je m'en vais." (I am going away.)

Dr. Poncelet leaned over the bed on which the president was lying and said to him: "Your friends are here, Monsieur Le President."

Mr. Carnot replied: "I am grateful for their presence," and in less than a minute he gasped for breath, there was a convulsive shuddering of his body, and the president of France was dead.

The bed on which M. Carnot died was of iron. It was placed between two windows of the palace. At its foot was the bed of honor which had been reserved for the president.

The incision made by the doctors in order to stop the internal hemorrhage measured about three inches long by two inches wide.

The Rue de la Barre is now barricaded at both ends and guarded by troops.

Immediately after the death of M. Carnot, Prime Minister Dupuy started on his return to Paris to officially announce the news to the senate and the chamber of deputies.

THE ASSASSIN TALKS.

He Gives His Name and Age but Not His Motive.

LYONS, June 25.—The assassin of President Carnot is a beardless young man, 20 or 25 years old. When arrested he was attired in a brown suit and wore a peaked cap that matched the suit in color. As he marched under his police guard from the Rue de la République to the station he held his head down, but his eyes glanced furtively around as though he was seeking an opportunity to escape from his captors. To have made such an attempt, however, would have been the height of foolhardiness, unless he desired to commit suicide, for there is not the slightest doubt that had he got away from protection afforded him by the police he would have been torn limb from limb by the crowd, whose every action showed that they were thirsting for his blood.

At the police station the assassin was questioned by Prefect Lepino. He speaks French very badly. He gave his name as Cesare Giovanni Santo, and his age at 22. He said he had lived at Ceté, department of Hérault, for the past six months, and had only come to Lyons that day. His replies were given coolly, but without any sign of bravado. He refused, however, to answer any of the many questions put to him regarding his motive for stabbing the president, declaring that on this subject he would speak only before a tribunal.

When he was searched by the police, a book was found in one of his pockets, in which it was written that he had been born in a village in the province of Milan, Italy.

ANTI-ITALIAN RIOTS.

Excitement Reigns in Lyons and Serious Trouble Is Feared.

LYONS, June 25.—After M. Carnot had been taken to the prefecture, it became generally known that his assassin was an Italian, and the feeling of deep indignation among the crowd found vent in the form of attacks upon cafes kept by inoffensive natives of Italy. Three such places in the vicinity of the palace of commerce were totally wrecked by the infuriated mob.

Frenzied flags which were in abundance, were then procured by the crowd and with cries of "Down with the foreigners," "Out with them," hundreds of men and boys marched to the Rue de la Barre, in which street the Italian consulate is situated. There is no doubt that the consul would have been sacked had it not been for the prompt action of the police, who stopped the crowd and compelled its members to disperse.

After the attacks upon the Italian consulate the disorderly element of the crowds devoted their attention to the Italians whom they found upon the streets. Several of these men were pursued by the mob and barely escaped with their lives. The police, who were extraordinarily vigilant, had great difficulty in rescuing the hunted men.

The excitement continued at fever heat and it would take very little to precipitate bloody anti-Italian riots. All over the city threats are made to take summary vengeance upon the countrymen of Santo, and the authorities, fearing that attempts will be made to put these threats into effect, ordered bodies of cuirassiers to patrol the city to prevent any outbreak. Everywhere the troops are greeted with cries of "Long live the army."

ALL PARIS EXCITED.

The News of the President's Assassination Reaches the Metropolis.

PARIS, June 25.—The first news of the attempt upon the life of President Carnot was received in this city by many expressions of doubt, but later when dispatches began to pour in describing in detail the act of the assassin doubt could no longer prevail. Then came the brief dispatch announcing that M. Carnot was dead. To describe the emotions that filled the minds of the Parisians would be impossible.

In the cafes and everywhere men congregated speculation was rife as to the motive that had prompted the crime. Many persons jumped to the conclusion that the assassination was the act of an anarchist, but as a matter of fact nothing whatsoever is positively known as yet as to the cause that led to the taking of the president's life.

Many persons believe that the crime was the work of an irresponsible "crank," whose enmity against France and her president was kindled by the Aigues Mortes riots, when many Italians were killed and who determined to wreak vengeance for the wrongs done his countrymen. Whatever the motive for the crime was, the act has plunged the whole of France into the deepest mourning.

Aside from his political enemies President Carnot was universally beloved. His pure, upright life endeared him to the masses of the people, and his honesty of purpose and devotion to the interests of France were unquestioned.

It is believed that his funeral, which will be an imposing state function, will be the occasion of one of the greatest demonstrations of popular love and respect that France has seen in many years.

On every side the deepest sympathy is expressed for Mme. Carnot, who did so much socially to make her husband's administration popular. Mme. Carnot was at the palace of the Blysse when the news of the assassination was conveyed to her by an official of the president's household. She at first refused to believe it, asking why anyone could desire to kill her husband.

When the truth of the dispatch was impressed upon her she became almost prostrated with grief. She demanded to be at once taken to Lyons, and arrangements were soon perfected with the railway company, and in a short time, in company with two of her daughters, who were weeping bitterly, she was speeded to Lyons in the hope that they would arrive there to find the reports of the president's condition exaggerated.

The journey is about 315 miles by rail, and before the train had proceeded more than a dozen miles a dispatch was handed aboard of it from one of the stations where it had been signalled to stop, announcing that M. Carnot was dead.

The French constitution requires that in the event of the presidency becoming vacant by death or otherwise the chambers must meet within three days of the time the vacancy occurs. In the meantime the ministry directs the public business.

It would be difficult to express at this time an opinion of any value as to the result of the assassination on the future of France. That political cabals will be formed to secure the election of M. Carnot's successor goes without saying, but the time in which such combinations can be formed will be limited for on Wednesday afternoon the senate and chamber of deputies will meet in joint session to elect his successor.

The most prominent name in connection with the presidency is that of M. Casimir Perier, at one time prime minister, and now president of the chamber of deputies. That he is well qualified to fill the position is conceded, but it is scarcely believed that he can be elected without a bitter struggle. The political situation, complicated, now becomes more so, and he would be a wise prophet who could foretell the next president of the republic.

President Carnot's Last Public Speech.

LYONS, June 25.—M. Carnot's last speech was delivered at the banquet given in his honor. He dwelt upon the success of the exhibition and said the same heart beats in all French breasts when it is known that the honor, security or rights of the country are at stake.

This same union of all Frenchmen formed a guarantee of the march to progress and justice, to which it belonged to France to give an example to the world.

CINCINNATI, June 25.—Emma Littleman, a 13-year-old girl, was found dead in J. P. Doppe's lumberyard on Gest street, at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Her skull had been fractured, and there was other evidences of foul play, but it is thought by some that she had fallen off a lumberpile. Further investigations are being made by the authorities.

TUG AND CATBOAT CAPSIZED.

The Tug Had About Seventy-Five People on Board of Which Only Fifty-One Were Saved—in the Catboat Five of the Six on Board Were Drowned—Details of the Disasters.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The tug James D. Nichol, with 63 excursionists and a crew numbering 10 or 12, sank at about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, some three miles of the Highlands. Fifty-four of those on board have been accounted for, the rest were probably drowned.

The tug left Fifth street and East river at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, touched at Pier 3, East river, and then went on the fishing grounds. She had, it is said, a license to carry 50 passengers, but 63 tickets were sold. There was a bar and a lunch counter on board, whose attendants, with the crew, brought the whole number on board up to about 75.

The tug reached the banks on time, but the fishing was poor and the sea too rough for comfort and about noon she started back. When about three miles east of the Highlands, and about four miles south of Scotland lightship, the waves began to break heavily over her starboard rail. To dodge the water and wind the passengers began to run around to the port side and to climb on top of the deckhouse. The boat careened alarmingly to port, and the water swept in over the rail.

The terror-stricken men rushed back to starboard, and the tug swung deeply down on that side. At the same moment three heavy breakers struck the boat in quick succession. The captain, William H. Yatt, stuck pluckily to his post and sounded the whistle in a prolonged scream for help. Even as he did so the tug filled with the water that poured into her on both sides and sank out of sight. She went down like a stone, carrying many of her passengers with her.

The water choked the cry of the whistle, but not before it had been heard and heeded. The Clyde steamer Algonquin, a mile away, heard it and swung around to go back to the rescue. The tugs Wallace B. Flint, R. J. Moran and Governor also hurried toward the spot. From farther away came the C. E. Evarts, reaching the spot too late to be of service.

The Algonquin sent her lifeboat with First Officer A. M. Rich and four sailors. They picked up 10 men, one of whom, however, died a few moments later. The tugs rescued the others who remained afloat. Some few had lifebelts on, but most of them were clinging to bits of wreckage. A liferaft supported a dozen, and the top of the pilot house as many more.

The unconscious man picked up by the Algonquin was found in the Nichol's lifeboat. He was under the thwarts and entangled in fishing lines. The boat, practically unsinkable, was floating right side up, but was full of water.

Captain S. C. Platt of the Algonquin says that when a stiff breeze was blowing there was no sudden squall. There was a big, short, sharp sea on.

The Algonquin brought those she had picked up to the city. The living dispersed to their homes and the dead body, which has not been identified, was sent to the morgue. All were people bearing German names and living on the lower east side of the city.

Some of the tugs not wishing to come to the city transferred the men they had saved to other tugs. The Sayers brought up 34 survivors and landed them on the east side. The C. E. Evarts brought up two bodies and several survivors. The Governor is supposed to have landed others in Brooklyn.

Altogether 54 out of the 75 have been accounted for, three of them being dead.

Among those on board the boat who are supposed to be drowned were: Andrew Weisler, Charles Welsing, John Dunn, Frank McAller, Joseph Wolf and Emil Wolf, Thomas Schlossinger, George Wanke, Gustava and William Kirschner, Edward Ray, William Schultz, Frederick Vanderheid, James Hayes, Albert Pabst, William Moore, Charles Graham, Herman Everard, body recovered; —Keyser, body recovered; Thomas Marsey, body recovered.

A BIG JUDGMENT.

The Tug River Coal and Salt Company Win a Suit for $280,000 at Louisville.

At Louisville Friday Judge Toney ordered a judgment for the plaintiffs for $280,000 in the case of the Tug River Coal and Salt Company vs. the Kentucky and Cincinnati Natural Gas and Fuel Company.

In 1886 the plaintiffs leased to the defendants certain gas, petroleum and coal property in Martin County, Kentucky, the defendants agreeing to pay therefor $250,000 in non-assessable stock at par value, and liquidate a $36,000 bonded debt by the plaintiffs. It was claimed that the defendants failed to carry out their contract, and judgment for $278,200 was asked. The defendants refused to plead further and judgment in the sum of $280,000 was given.

The Kentucky and Cincinnati Natural Gas Fuel Company is the concern that started out to pipe natural gas from Martin County down the river to Cincinnati, supplying cities along the route. There was considerable talk about the project at the time, several articles appearing in the BULLETIN in reference to the matter.

ANOTHER CITY IN TROUBLE.

Ashland Jails a Drummer For Soliciting Without License, and Will Have to Pay For It.

A special session of the United States Court was held at Covington Friday morning to regulate an entanglement resulting from a clash of United States law and one of the ordinances of the town of Ashland.

The conflict came about a few days ago, when P. E. Short, a drummer for the Commonwealth Furniture Company, of Cincinnati, was arrested in Ashland, charged with selling goods without license. Short claimed that he was not selling and had made no sale; that he was merely showing some samples to patrons of his firm.

He was fined, notwithstanding, by an Ashland Magistrate, and on his refusal to pay the fine, the Ashland authorities wanted to put him at work on the street with the ordinary chain gang. Short was taken sick, however, and so escaped the intended humiliation.

He notified his friends, and the latter immediately sued out a writ of habeas corpus in the United States Circuit Court. It was directed to the Jailer of Ashland, ordering that official to appear in Covington along with Short.

After hearing the testimony and arguments of the attorneys, Judge Taft ordered that Short be immediately discharged from the custody of the Ashland Jailer, holding that the authorities of that city were without warrant in arresting and acting in contravention of the law governing interstate commerce in the regulations they are attempting to make in their city ordinance.

Mr. Short and his friends are quite indignant at the handling he received from the Ashland officials, and he will enter suit against them for damages for false imprisonment in a few weeks.

Lexington has a suit on hand of a similar character.

Howling Over Freight Rates.

Lexington Stock Farm: "A recent increase in freight rates has caused a 'regular howl' among some of the Blue Grass horsemen, and many of them say that if the rates are not reduced they will be compelled to remain at home with their horses. They say that last year the rates were too high, and that this year they have been doubled. One prominent horseman told a reporter that in one instance to ship a car-load of horses a distance of sixty miles the freight charges would amount to $326. No owner can stand such an expense, and unless something is done to reduce this tremendous extortion, many of them will remain at home or go overland from place to place. There is a movement on foot now to get special rates, and it is hoped that the effort will prove successful."

This increase will cut more ways than one. If the horsemen remain at home there will be fewer races and less traveling over the roads to the fairs.

REV. J. S. FELIX, a younger brother of Rev. Dr. Felix, of Lexington, is, it is feared, hopelessly insane, says the Paris Kentuckian. He is confined in a private sanitarium at Cincinnati. He seems to be crazed with the delusion that his soul is lost, and repeats constantly: "Just to think that I have given my whole life to saving others and now my soul must be lost."

DOWN in Texas recently Sam Jones asked the men in his congregation, who could have thrown a stone at the accused woman that Christ told to go and sin no more, to stand up. A NEW LOTTERY SWINDLE.

A Maysville Saloon-Keeper Caught For $150 by the Frauds.

Cincinnati Enquirer: "More facts have developed in the new lottery fraud successfully operated in this and surrounding States.

"Letters in plain envelopes are sent to the victims. The missives purport to be from the Louisiana Lottery Company, and set forth that the company, owing to the difficulty of transacting business under the present postal regulations, is desirous of establishing agencies and placing large sums of money. The letters always contain a bunch of tickets, and the victims are requested to sell the tickets, retain 15 per cent. of the proceeds, and send the remainder to a confidential address.

"The swindle is found in the fact that the lottery tickets are bogus.

"One man in Portsmouth received 115 tickets. He kept all of them himself and sent on $100, expecting to be entrusted with big sums, as the company's agent. A man at Marion, Ohio, was caught for $85, another at Lima for $50, and a saloon-keeper at Maysville, Ky., for $150."

A SUNDAY MORNING SUICIDE.

WILEY EVANS Shoots and Kills Himself on the Grade at Ripley.

A Sad Affair.

The citizens of Ripley were startled by a pistol shot early Sunday morning and parties on Front street were horrified to see a young man stagger and fall on the grade near the water's edge.

When they reached the scene he was dead. He had shot himself in the forehead and died almost instantly.

The unfortunate young man was Wiley Evans, aged about seventeen years, youngest son of Dr. Evans who lives a few miles back of Aberdeen.

Young Evans had been acting queerly for some time. His friends have noticed that he was not altogether right, and it is the general belief that his mind was unbalanced when he took his life.

He had been rather wild and reckless and had given his parents a great deal of worry and trouble.

The family has relatives in this city.

One of young Evans' peculiar transactions was recently referred to in the BULLETIN. Mr. Will Trout, of the Oddfellows' Hall Clothing House, had a bicycle for sale. Evans borrowed it one morning to ride around the square, and the next heard from him he was at Wilmington, O. The wheel was paid for in due course of time.

A gentleman who spent Sunday in Ripley brings a different account of the suicide. Young Evans spent Saturday night at the Bank Hotel. About 5 o'clock Sunday morning the porter saw him go out, and this was the last seen of him alive. About 9 o'clock Evans' dead body was found in some willows on the shore some distance above the wharfboat.

SOME of the young men of this city are talking of organizing a company of State Guards.

MR. AND MRS. P. P. PARKER entertained about fifty of their friends and relatives Saturday evening at their hospitable home near Mayslick. Among the guests from this city were Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Piper, Mrs. Nannie Clarke and Mrs. C. C. Hopper.

THE Delaware and Maryland Peninsula is making ready for a great tomato crop, grown not so much for immediate consumption as for canning. Last year was a bad tomato season, and it is expected that this will be a good one. The area in tomatoes is larger from year to year, and the cost of production is lower. So, too, is the cost of canning, and the consumer gets at least part of the benefit of all this cheapening.

THE two handsome brick residences erected by Mr. John Newell on Lee street are under roof and will soon be ready for occupancy. Mr. Newell is acting wisely, taking advantage of the dull times and having his work done when it will be done properly and without the rush and hurry usually attending busy times. He is now considering the advisability of building two brick residences on East Limestone street. Good residences in the heart of the city are always rentable and yield good returns for the money invested. Let the good work go on.

COLONEL BRECKINRIDGE had quite an exciting time at Hinton, W. Va., Friday, while en route to Lexington, over the Chesapeake and Ohio. When the train pulled into that city a vast crowd had congregated at the depot, and calls were made for Breckinridge. He was received with deafening cheers. At this juncture some man opposed to Breckinridge rushed up with a banner on which was inscribed, "Protection to American Women," and flung it in the Colonel's face. This infuriated the crowd, and the man was seized and his flag torn to pieces. A few silver tones calmed the tumult.

CINCINNATI Tribune, June 23rd: "Hon. Green R. Keller, editor of the Carlisle Mercury, and candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Railroad Commissioner, was at the Palace yesterday. Said he: 'I think my chances for the nomination are as good if not better than any of my opponents, and the withdrawal of Captain James T. Willis, of Grant County, of which I have just received notice, will help me materially, as I feel sure of carrying Grant, Pendleton, Boone and other counties for which I would have made no contest against Captain Willis. I am here on a flying visit to see my mother, Mrs. Smith, of the Smith House, Cynthiana, Ky., who is here at Dr. Johnson's hospital under his treatment. She has just had a severe surgical operation performed on her, and was taken worse yesterday. She is much better to-day, and, we hope, will be all right in a few days.'

LAST WEEK OF TARIFF DEBATE.
The Bill Will Probably Pass the Senate by Next Saturday.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—There is little doubt in any quarter that the present week will see the end of the tariff debate in the senate. Estimates as to the time when the final vote shall be reached range from Tuesday until Saturday, but a majority of the senate has expressed the opinion that the final vote will be taken on Wednesday or Thursday.

With the thermometer ranging from 95 to 99 degrees, as it did on Saturday and Sunday, senators find every reason for dispatching the business as rapidly as possible. In view of this fact Senator Harris still thinks it possible to conclude the work on the bill by Tuesday night. To accomplish this, however, means very rapid work, comparatively few speeches, and the possible postponement of important items, such as reciprocity, until the conference reports shall be made.

Senator Allison, who has had long experience with tariff and appropriation bills, and other legislation effecting diversified interests, expresses the opinion that the senate will not dispose of the bill in committee of the whole before Tuesday night, and that the four remaining days of the week will be necessary to finish the work on the bill in the senate. He also thinks it probable that there will be some general speeches by those who, finding that the debate is coming to a close, will want to be heard upon some point of interest to them or their people.

The more important questions yet to be disposed of in committee are: The remainder of the income tax, the whisky and spirit tax, the tobacco ~~law~~, Senator Teller's retaliation amendment, the spun silk yarn question, which was passed over when the silk schedule was under consideration, and the reciprocity question.

If the final vote on the tariff bill is reached before Saturday, the appropriation bills which have been reported will be immediately taken up, but in what order has not yet been determined.

House Program.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Railway pooling is expected to be the main subject for discussion before the house during the coming week, with the admission of New Mexico to statehood and the taxation of greenbacks as incidental questions.

Speaker Crisp's illness during the past week has prevented the arrangement of any exact program, but Representative Catchings of the rules committee said that these bills were likely to occupy the week, although no order of precedence for them had been arranged.

The pooling bill is regarded as one of the most important measures before congress. It is a revision of the interstate commerce law, so as to permit railroads to pool their earnings under certain restrictions. The bill also overcomes the impotency of the interstate commerce commission due to its inability to compel witnesses to testify. The pooling provision is strongly urged by the railroads, and is endorsed by the interstate commerce commission, and by all state railroad commissioners except that of Minnesota.

It is said that the anti-pooling section of the present law has led to fraud among shippers and to secret rate cutting among roads. The bill provides that the pooling contract must first be submitted to and approved by the interstate commerce commission.

The New Mexico bill promises to be urged to a conclusion this week, as Speaker Crisp is not disposed to let it drag along any further. There have been many efforts to push it to passage, but this one is expected to be final.

Attempted Murder and Suicide.

LAFORTE, Ind., June 25.—Peter Marron of this city quarreled with his wife yesterday and attempted to kill her with a knife. She received a cut across the abdomen, which allowed her intestines to protrude. She bled profusely and is in a very critical condition. After committing the cowardly act, Marron attempted to kill himself by taking rat poison, but he took an overdose and will probably recover.

On Their Way Home.

LYME, Conn., June 25.—A remnant of Swift's industrial army, which marched through here on its way to Washington some weeks ago, has camped just outside of town on its way back to Boston. The company secured food from citizens of the town. There are 30 men in the band. The march was continued Saturday.

The Modern Mother.
Has found that her little ones are improved more by the pleasant laxative, Syrup of Figs, when in need of the laxative effect of a gentle remedy, than by any other, and that it is more acceptable to them. Children enjoy it and it benefits them. The true remedy, Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

For the Farmer.

Danville Advocate: "A great many farmers in Boyle are cutting wheat this week. The yield will vary considerably, some crops falling short and others coming up to the average. Nothing but the thresher will tell a straight story."

Dallas County, Texas, which a few years ago thought that cotton was the only crop it could profitably raise, is now harvesting six hundred thousand bushels of wheat. Several counties in North Texas are getting in the finest wheat crop produced in forty years.

Cincinnati Price Current: "There continues to be a large movement of hogs in the West, the week's packing returns showing a total of 360,000, compared with 365,000 the preceding week, and 255,000 for corresponding time last year. From March 1 the total is 4,210,000 against 2,895,000 a year ago. Increase for the week 105,000, and for the season 1,315,000 hogs. Some further decline in prices has occurred, the average of the Western markets at the close being about fifteen cents per 100 pounds lower than a week ago."

A Quarter Century Test.

For a quarter of a century Dr. King's New Discovery has been tested, and the millions who have received benefit from its use testify to its wonderful curative powers in all diseases of throat, chest and lungs. A remedy that has stood the test so long and that has given so universal satisfaction is not experiment. Each bottle is positively guaranteed to give relief, or the money will be refunded. It is admitted to be the most reliable for coughs and colds. Trial bottles free at J. James Wood's drug store. Large size 50c. and $1.

TARSNEY TARRED AND FEATHERED.

The Fate Meted Out to the Adjutant General of Colorado.

COLORADO SPRINGS, June 25.—Adjutant General Tarsney, who was kidnapped from the Alamo hotel a few minutes after midnight by masked men, was taken to the suburbs in a hack and there tarred and feathered.

After the tar and feathers had been applied Tarsney was told to move out of El Paso county; that he was not wanted either in Cripple Creek or Colorado Springs, and that if he ever showed up again he would meet a worse fate than a dose of tar and feathers.

General Tarsney walked to Palmer lake and telegraphed Governor Waite. The governor immediately dispatched a special train and General Tarsney was taken to Denver. Once there several physicians were called, who succeeded in removing every particle of the coal tar, and from his neck down there remains no trace of his experiences beyond an occasional abrasion of the skin.

His face, however, is inflamed and blistered because of the kindly intended services of a woman who removed the tar from the face, neck and hair by the use of coal oil.

The general was asked whom he blamed for his sufferings, replying that he had nothing to say on that point. He said he would take no steps to personally prosecute his tormentors.

Governor Waite is greatly excited over the outrage. He has offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of any of the participants.

CITY HALL WRECKED.

Considerable Damage Done by a Storm at Brazil, Indiana.

BRAZIL, June 25.—About 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon a wind and rainstorm struck this city, coming from the northwest. The city hall was completely wrecked by the fire alarm tower being blown down upon it. The bell, which weighs several tons, came crashing through the roof where the firemen and several citizens were sitting, and narrowly escaped killing Constable Pat Turlong, who was literally covered with the debris of the wreck. The building is completely wrecked.

The roof of the spike mill was also blown off and many large plate-glass windows broken in the business houses by the awnings being blown down and the iron rods being thrown through them. Large shade trees were blown across the streetcar tracks, which stopped traffic for several hours.

Old citizens say it was the worst storm they ever witnessed.

ELECTRIC LAUNCH CAPSIZED.

Three Persons Drowned in Lake St. Clair During a Squall.

DETROIT, June 25.—By the capsizing of the electric launch Helen W., during a squall on Lake St. Clair yesterday afternoon three persons were drowned and two others narrowly escaped a similar fate. The storm struck the tiny craft so suddenly that she was swamped almost instantly.

The drowned are: Caleb E. Healy and the Misses Katie and Maggie Orttwine. Two other young women, Miss Rousseau and Miss Hawley, managed to keep afloat until rescued by the crew of the steamer J. H. Pauly. None of the bodies have been recovered.

Falling Water Tower Kills Two People.

COLUMBUS, O., June 25.—Yesterday, while the fire department was drilling on Broad street, the immense water tower toppled over and crashed into a survey, killing James H. Frederick and his wife. A gentleman named Rigby, who was in the survey, escaped.

Two Children Drowned.

SUMNER, Ills., June 25.—Samuel and Ada Hockman, aged 13 and 15 years respectively, sons of William Hockman, living nine miles north of this city, were drowned in Embarrass river while swimming yesterday afternoon.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.
